

Press release

Opening: 24/06, 14:00–21:00

Through 23/07/2021

The paths of the artistic trail the artist Katerina Sarra carves are separated with two guides: form and color.

Her compass turns to the form, its paradoxical and unrecognizable element, thus discovering different trails for each artwork separately.

Her visual research is based on the way she lines and contains the form, while adding the fascinating element of color.

Compositions emerging through the striking colors she uses, underlining the content of the visual language she shares with the audience: a fluid and liquid environment, bathed in light, with her personal universe through color and abstract composition.

At the same time, the unknown context of the form activates her need to delve into the study of her own work, as she doesn't know from the beginning the shape that will be born from the continuous process of her creative language and painting. As a result, using the properties of color, she sprawls on her canvases through delicate movements and plays in its textures and gravity.

In other words, Sarra balances form and color, paint and design, liquid and solid, achieving her primary purpose: formatting her original artistic alphabet, the idiom presented in the exhibition through textures and surfaces of color, joining the world of form, but at the same time differing from it.
